

R Park Wildflower Meadow Update

The R Park Wildflower Meadow is a learning project. And even the most fastidious planning can offer opportunities to learn. The whipping wind this winter blew the landscape fabric up in some spots. Just enough sunlight and time allowed some sneaky weeds to come back up. So we've pivoted and changed plans.

Early this Spring, the meadow area will be covered with recycled cardboard, followed by a layer of compost, and finally the landscape fabric. This three-layer approach should be enough to suppress the hardiest of weeds. The sun will take care of the rest, by cooking those rascals!

Seeding and planting baby native plants will happen in the Fall 2023.

Are you following our progress? Making your own meadow along with us?
Let us know! Amarshall@roelandpark.org subject line "wildflower meadow"

